

Healthy Products for People and the Planet

At The Boulevard at NoDa

The Boulevard at NoDa, a unique fashion, art, craft and gift marketplace located in the heart of NoDa, Charlotte's historic arts district, is offering an array of healthy, earth-friendly products.

Monique Velez of NoDa Kids carries G-Diapers that are flushable and only take 50-150 days to break down. These eco-diapers are made of materials that are "neutral or beneficial" to the earth and help to offset the approximately 50 million diapers going to the landfill daily and an average decomposition time of 500 years. Velez also offers Green to Grow bottles that are free of BPA, a common chemical found in most plastics that may have toxic, harmful health effects.

Jill Cooper supplies eco-friendly baby products including onsies and bibs made with 100% unbleached certified organic cotton that protects babies from skin allergies. She also carries Naked Bee products that are paraben, dye and pigment free and not tested on animals. Natural ingredients like honey, palm and coconut oils, beeswax are used.

Animal advocate Cindy Harris, owner of Meow and Fetch, believes pets should be eating a healthier diet and offers pet lovers holistic, natural pet food such as Wysong and Canidae. To further spread the spirit of environmentalism, she placed a recycling container outside of the shop so pedestrians and shop girls can reduce waste.
